

DEDICATE NEW SEMINARY ORGAN

Beautiful Instrument Played at Special Services in the Chapel.

DONOR'S FAVORITE HYMNS

Prof. Ralph Lewars Gives Recital Preceding Regular Program. Complimentary Dinner this Evening.

Appropriate exercises marked the dedication this afternoon of the new $2000 Moller pipe organ presented to the Lutheran Theological Seminary by Mr. and Mrs. William Grecht, of Baltimore, in commemoration of the four hundredth anniversary of the Reformation.

Dr. J. A. Singmaster, chairman of the Seminary faculty presided at the dedicatory services and preceding the program Prof. Ralph P. Lewars gave a recital on the organ.

His program was arranged to show as fully as possible the fine quality and the variety of registration of the new organ. The sonorous tones of the Rheinberger Sonata, of the Grand Choeur of Dubois, and of the Sonata in C Minor by Guilmant, exhibited its power as well as its finely balanced voicing. The pastoral style of the Allegro Cantabile showed the lovely quality of the Oboe d'Orchestre. Two groups of quiet numbers including the Romanza by Parker, the evening song of Matthews, the Nocturne of Dethier and the Cantilene of Hollins, covered a wide range from softest pianissimo of Aeoline or Vox Celeste to the full power of the Crescendo pedal.

Mr. Lewars is a talented and thoroughly trained organist to whose playing it is a delight to listen. He displays a refined style of interpretation and excellent taste in registration. A graduate of Pennsylvania College in the Class of 1903, he is now head of the Philadelphia School of Musical Art and organist of the First Presbyterian Church of Philadelphia.

After the invocation by Dr. T. C. Billheimer and the reading of the 150th Psalm, the one request of Mr. Grecht when he first announced his gift was fulfilled, the entire audience joining in singing the five stanzas of "Alas! and Did My Savior Bleed." This is his favorite hymn and he wanted it to be the first one played on the instrument after its installation. The singing was most impressive.

Mr. Grecht's formal address of presentation and the acceptance by Dr. Singmaster followed and then another of Mr. Grecht's favorite hymns was sung, Mrs. J. B. Baker rendering by his special request "Face to Face." The dedicatory prayer was offered by Dr. E. D. Weigle, president of the board of trustees of the Seminary; the audience joined in singing "I Love Thy Zion, Lord," and the benediction pronounced by Rev. D. M. Moser, brought the services to a close.

The Organ
With the pipes located on either side of the choir recessed the organ presents a most beautiful appearance. The finish is in gold, harmonizing with the oak woodwork of the room and in perfect taste with the walls. In addition to its beauty the instrument is complete in every detail.

RAILROAD WORM AFTER APPLES

Method of Fighting this Pest is Told by the State Experts.

Throughout the northern part of Pennsylvania, and, in fact, extending southward to the center of the State, there is to be found a very serious pest of the apples, especially of the summer apples and sweet varieties, which bores through the pulp of the fruit in winding tunnels, and is, therefore, called the Railroad worm or Apple Maggot. It is the larva of a fly with spotted wings which flies around the trees in the early part of the summer, and lay its eggs on the fruit.

Shortly before the fruit is half grown this pest could be destroyed by spraying with a sweetened arsenical spray upon which the adult or winged fly would feed, but after the larva enters the fruit and commences to feed in it, there is no remedy. The thing to do then is to be sure and gather and destroy the fallen fruit or pasture the orchard with fowls or pigs that eat the falling fruit. The larva will remain in the fruit for a few days after it falls, and this gives the grower an opportunity to destroy it. After the fruit has remained on the ground for some days, this larva bores out and enters the soil, where it changes to a pupa or chrysalis, and passes the winter there.

When infested fruits fall where they can be washed into a stream, they are carried downstream, sometimes great distances, and thus the pest is spread. It is also spread by shipping infested fruits from one region to another.

In the fall of the year is the time to watch for this pest. Many apples contain the Railroad maggot without this pest being observed by the persons using them, because it is conspicuous; yet the brownish winding tunnels show its presence, and indicate that all apples in the vicinity where it occurs should be gathered and fed to stock, or made into cider, or otherwise disposed of promptly, so that the pest will be destroyed, and there will be none left to continue their destructive work another year.

Uriah Rohrbach died at 7:45 this morning at his home in Mt. Joy township near St. James' Church from acute indigestion. He was aged 65 years.

Mr. Rohrbach was operated upon for appendicitis in a York hospital about a month ago but he had fully recovered. On Tuesday evening he was seized with a violent attack of indigestion which continued until this morning, death resulting from exhaustion.

He was a son of Jacob Rohrbach and had followed farming during his entire life. He leaves his wife who, before marriage, was Miss Louise Hartman, of Littlestown. He also leaves three sisters, Miss Barbara Rohrbach, Miss Joanna Rohrbach, and Mrs. Andrew Kuhn, of Littlestown.

GREAT FREIGHT MOVEMENT HERE

Wheat and Other Grains with Many Coal Trains being Sent Through.

Just what the rush of freight through Gettysburg amounts to at the present time is something which few persons outside of those connected with the railroads understand. Immense shipments of grain are being taken to Baltimore over the Western Maryland and long strings of cars loaded with the wheat, rye, and corn are sent down over this division daily. As an indication of the total amount of this business it is told that on a single day this week ten trains, comprising 500 cars, were sent through Gettysburg to Baltimore. Several of these were made up exclusively of wheat and others of coal. Practically all of the grain is for foreign shipment.

On Wednesday one trainload of wheat was sent to Baltimore where a ship was waiting for it, the time of departure being delayed until the train could get there and deliver its cargo.

The management of the trains is a matter of interest, and some expert maneuvering is required to handle them successfully. Frequently it will be found that a ship is waiting for corn, and a train carrying wheat will drop enough cars of this grain and pick up sufficient corn to go right through and meet the demands. Often it is the corn that is dropped and wheat, held up at some station, will be taken on.

The big 900 engines as well as the 700s and 600s are running through here daily, and those who find entertainment in watching the movement are having plenty to occupy their time.

The express continues heavy as ever. An interesting sight Wednesday was the handling of seven large truckloads of ladies' felt hats from a Reading firm to Baltimore stores. The train due to leave here at 6:07 was held up some minutes to allow the loading of the consignment.

CONFESS THEFT OF AUTOMOBILE

Boys Caught here after Coming All the Way East from Detroit.

APPREHENDED IN HOTEL

Traded Stolen Car at Gettysburg Garage for Another Machine and Hundred Dollars More.

Confessing to the theft of a Hupmobile touring car in Detroit on Tuesday, two youths aged 20 and 17 years, this morning cleared up a complex case which confronted the police in town last night when they arrested the two young men in bed at the Wabash Hotel, after it was found that they were using stolen license tags.

The apprehension of the boys, who claim to be brothers but who absolutely refuse to give their names, came about through a peculiar train of circumstances.

Upon their arrival in town Wednesday evening they went to the Centre Square garage where they offered to trade the Hupmobile car for a Maxwell and $100. Mr. Bream, proprietor of the garage, took up the offer and gave them a check for $80 and $20 in cash. Their efforts to get the check cashed were unsuccessful and, in the meantime, Mr. Bream became suspicious and told the officers about the affair.

They found that the license on the car was that owned by Albert Tuttle, of Pittsburgh, and he was immediately called on the telephone. He stated to the officers that his car was in his garage but that the license tags had been removed. A service book in the Hupmobile showed that it had been sold to Lewis C. Rodgers, of Detroit, and this morning the youths told that they had taken the machine from the Rodgers private garage. The tags were taken from the Tuttle car as it stood in an alley at Pittsburgh and were substituted for the Michigan license.

"You can easily see this is our first experience in this kind of business," commented the older youth in making his confession. "We are too dumb to get away with anything like this. If we had not changed the tags we might not have been caught."

Asked why they took the car, the older youth again said,

"Well, it's this way. Everybody in Detroit has an automobile and we thought we'd like to have one, too. I thought up the idea of stealing one but my brother didn't want to do it. I finally persuaded him and we left together. We won't give our names because we don't want our mother to worry."

When the officers visited the boys at the jail this morning they still had the $20 in cash and the $80 check. These were returned to Mr. Bream. The youths also had enough money on them to pay their hotel bill.

The small amount of money which the boys had with them was obtained through the disposition of two revolvers which they found in the Hupmobile when they took it. One of these they pawned to a friend, and the other they sold here.

The stolen car had not been badly treated, though the youths had made fast time from Detroit, coming all the way since Tuesday. The older boy is a trained chauffeur, it is said, and was careful in handling the machine on his trip here.

Upon receiving their confession this morning, Chief of Police Smiley communicated with Mr. Rodgers and the necessary steps will be taken by him to have the car returned. The local difficulties of the unhappy youths are all being cleared up so that there will be no charges preferred against them in Gettysburg. It is also regarded as doubtful if Albert Tuttle, the Pittsburgher from whom the tags were stolen, will take any action after he gets the tags returned.

In this event the owner of the car will be the only one directly concerned in prosecuting the boys.

KIND NEIGHBORS CUT FIELD CORN

Man Recovering from Operation is Remembered by Many of his Friends.

True neighborliness was shown by a number of men living in the vicinity of Piney Creek several days ago when they gathered at the home of Harry Cutsail to cut his field corn.

Several months ago Mr. Cutsail was taken ill and later underwent an operation at the Frederick hospital. He recovered slowly and, though he has been able to be about, has not been well enough to do any hard work. Knowing this, the friends and neighbors decided to cut at least part of the corn in his field and gathered at four o'clock in the afternoon for that purpose, working vigorously for several hours and accomplishing a great deal, though they were sorry they had not found it possible to give more time and complete the job.

The kindness of his friends was keenly appreciated by Mr. Cutsail and later was shown by Mrs. Cutsail in a luncheon served. A number of women attended the cutting bee and had a little party of their own assisting in the preparation of the luncheon. The following were present:

Fillmore Bowers, Charles Rinehart, Benjamin Bowers, Edward Harner, Geary Bowers, William Stouffer Jr., Harry Bowers, Harry Ecker, Robert Reaver, Edgar Sauerwein, Lester Cutsail, Emanuel Overholtzer, John Cutsail, Birnie Bowers, John Sentz, Roscoe Rittase, Thomas Lemmon, Oliver Hesson, Jesse Sauerwein, Thomas Ecker, Austin Sauerwein, Earl Bowers, Frank Study, Paul Rinehart, Maurice Bowers, John Sauerwein, Noah Wantz, Charles Hahn, and Birnie Shriver; Mrs. James Hahn, Mrs. Rosa Shriver, Mrs. Leslie Cutsail, and Mrs. Bertha Ecker, Misses Courtney Shriver and Ethel Lemmon, and Master Benjamin Cutsail.

SCHOOLS' OPENING

Announcements Made for Beginning of Work Next Week.

The public schools of Gettysburg will open Friday, Sept. 29th.

The supervising principal's office in the High School Building on York street will be open on Thursday, Sept. 28th, from 9 a. m. until noon, for the enrollment of non-resident students in the High School and all students who have recently moved to Gettysburg.

Beginners will not report to the office, but will report to the school in their district on the opening day of school.

All school children in the sixth and lower grades will attend the school in the district in which they live. The districts will be the same as last year. Children living on Carlisle and Chambersburg streets, or north of Chambersburg and west of Carlisle, and those west of South Washington, will attend the Meade School. Those living east of South Washington and Carlisle streets will attend the High street school. If any changes are made necessary by overcrowding, they will be arranged after the opening of school.

All teachers will be expected to be at the High School Building at 9 a. m. Thursday, September 28th to attend to preliminary arrangements.

Students entering the High School from other districts should bring the entrance certificate of the county superintendent either Thursday, September 28th, or Friday, September 29th. It will not be necessary to mail these certificates to the supervising principal.

Students who attended the Summer School and were informed their promotion will report for work with their regular classes.

LATE PLANTING TO FIGHT FLY

Best Way to Get Rid of Hessian Fly Says State Department of Agriculture.

The season for planting wheat is now at hand, and the chief feature in avoiding destruction by the fall brood of the Hessian fly lies in not planting too early.

Over the greater part of Pennsylvania wheat should not be planted before the last week of September, and to be sure of avoiding the Hessian fly, it is best to delay the planting in all parts of the State until the latter part of this month. The Hessian fly has been very destructive throughout Pennsylvania, and farmers have learned the importance of taking precautionary measures toward preventing an increase. Volunteer grain should be plowed down by the end of this month. Those who are wise enough to have a trap strip across the field in order to catch the eggs of the Hessian fly can turn this down by the last of September, and drill it to wheat for their regular crop.

Seeding before the middle of September is almost sure to be infested with the fly, and carry this pest over the winter for its spring brood, which is the one that causes the wheat straws to break and fall before harvest time. There is no means of preventing the destruction by the spring brood of the Hessian fly. No agricultural practice, no fertilizing and no insecticide has yet been able to check it or reduce it. The best recommendation that can be given for preventing the ravages of this pest, which has destroyed hundreds of thousands of dollars in Pennsylvania, is the one point of late fall seeding. This, of course, does not mean that the seed bed should be prepared late. The seed bed should be prepared by early plowing and abundant harrowing, so that it is in a good state of cultivation to receive and retain moisture and keep the plants growing vigorously.

BOYCOTT CLOSES SCHOOLS NEARBY

Efforts to Fix up Difficulties across the Line Prove Un-availing.

MANY CHILDREN STAY OUT

Grievance about Changing Place of Attendance Cause of One Trouble. Teacher is Other Cause.

Two school boycotts are now flourishing in Frederick county. One is being enforced by the patrons of the closed Annandale school near Emmitsburg and the other by the patrons of Prospect school, Woodville district.

The Annandale patrons demand the re-opening of their school closed on petition of 60 per cent of the patrons of the institution. A certain faction among the patrons of the Prospect school demand a change of teachers. It is reported that this faction represents a very small percentage of the parents of children that attend that school.

The normal attendance at Prospect school is estimated at more than fifty children. The school was opened last week with about half dozen children attending. Later in the week these dropped out, until the entire student body failed to show up.

Attendance Officer Franklin D. Harshman has been investigating the matter. The parents of the children have been interviewed with the result that in all probability the children will be enrolled without further controversy. Again many of the parents are using their children to assist at the fall work.

The labor problem is a serious one in that section. In many cases it is necessary for the wives and daughters to work side by side in the fields with the men, in order that the crop may not be lost. This has a tendency to keep children from the school.

At Annandale, however, the parents have refused point-blank to enroll their children. Each day a wagon obtained by the school authorities to transport the children to the Emmitsburg school makes a trip, returning without its load of pupils. On Monday half a dozen children stood near the school building when the wagon arrived. They made no effort to take their places.

Within the next few days, it is said, warrants will be sworn out for the arrest of the parents for violating the provisions of the Maryland school attendance law. Several of the residents of that section have been quoted as saying they had determined to make a test case of the boycott.

MACKENSEN'S ARMY BEATEN

Bucharest Announces Victory Over Foe's Main Army.

SERBIANS NEAR MONASTIR

The Teutons Open Strong Offensive Against the Invading Rumanians in Transylvania.

Bucharest, Sept. 21.—Rumanian troops have won a victory over the main Bulgarian, German and Turkish force in a battle near Enges, Dobrudja, it was officially announced. The fighting is continuing.

Teuton forces in Transylvania have been heavily reinforced and have opened a strong offensive against the invading Rumanians to the west of Hermannstadt. A statement issued by the war office admitted that the Rumanian forces had retired slightly in the Streil Valley before the Teuton attacks.

Serbs Are Near Monastir.

London, Sept. 21.—Serbian troops have advanced to within seven miles of Monastir and are engaged in sharp fighting with the Bulgars, said an Athens despatch.

A Central News despatch said it was learned from reliable sources that the German and Bulgarian staffs have left Monastir.

The Bulgarians are pillaging Monastir, preparatory to evacuating the town said an Exchange Telegraph despatch from Salonika. Bulgarian comitadjis are ravaging the neighboring Serbian towns.

The Bulgarians have been driven from one trench position after another and much of the fighting is going on in the open. For the first time since the Balkan fighting began large cavalry forces are in clashes at several points along the Serbo-Greek frontier.

Serbian cavalry is reported to have played a large part in the capture of several villages around Florina. The troops pushed the pursuit of the retreating Bulgars so rapidly that they were unable to make a stand until after they had crossed the frontier.

Northeast of Lake Ostrovo, the Bulgarians, who were driven from the heights of Kamakchalan, have halted their retreat and are counter attacking. The struggle is becoming violent at that point and also around Poroj northeast of Lake Doiran, where Bulgarians and Italians are engaged.

GREEK ULTIMATUM RUMORED

New Cabinet Decides "In Principle" to Abandon Neutrality Policy.

Athens, Sept. 21.—There is reason to believe that the Greek government has sent an ultimatum to Germany and Bulgaria, expiring Wednesday night, demanding the immediate return of the soldiers taken prisoners at Kavala.

The diplomatic representatives of the entente powers continue their policy of not recognizing the existence of the new cabinet of M. Kriegeropoulos by abstaining from paying a formal visit to the new premier.

King Constantine discussed the question of further declarations by the new cabinet in the hope of breaking the glacial silence of the entente and resuming the negotiations for the entrance of Greece into the war.

CALDER WINS SENATE FIGHT

Defeats Bacon in New York—Progressives Indorse Whitman.

New York, Sept. 21.—Returns from all but two counties in the state indicated that William M. Calder, defeated Robert Bacon in the senatorial primary by about 7000 votes.

The complete vote of Greater New York was: Calder, 54,844; Bacon, 21,418; giving Calder a majority below the Bronx of 33,426.

Nearly complete returns from up-state gave Calder a little short of 27,000 majority above the city line, and the missing districts could not materially change the result.

It seemed certain that Governor Whitman had defeated Samuel Seabury for the Progressive nomination for governor by from 2000 to 3000.

Returns in this contest are slow coming in from up-state, but the 3995 districts thus far counted give Whitman 9430, to Seabury 6389. The governor ran ahead in and out of New York city.

U-BOAT EXTREMISTS RENEW CAMPAIGN

Warns Against U. S. Protests to Great Britain.

Berlin, Sept. 21.—Major Ernst Bassermann, leader of the National Liberal party, in a keynote speech delivered before his constituents in the Saarbruecken district, declared that the submarine campaign had been postponed and not abandoned.

Major Bassermann advocated the widest possible use of both submarines and Zeppelins and the most ruthless methods of warfare.

The National Liberal leader asserted that his views were shared by Admiral von Tirpitz, Admiral von Koenig, Prince von Buelow and Count Zeppelin. He maintained that "in a struggle wherein the existence of Germany is at stake the most ruthless use of all possible weapons is called for."

This sentiment was heartily applauded by his audience. Submarines and Zeppelins, continued Major Bassermann, were the most effective weapons against "our arch-enemy, England."

Referring to the United States, Major Bassermann warned his hearers against trusting for any permanent effect upon American sympathies from England's blacklist policy and the achievements of the Deutschland and other commercial submarines. He warned them also not to hope that the present American protests to England would have any greater effect than their predecessors.

No prospects of peace were held out by the speaker. He told his hearers that it would be a delusion to believe that there was any immediate prospect of an end of the war. On the contrary, he said, Germany was facing a more difficult war than had at first appeared possible, but nevertheless he saw no reason to doubt ultimate victory.

CONFESSES TO SAVE WOMAN

Blackmailer Tells of Operation of Syndicate.

DECLARES THE GAME IS UP

Government is Ready for More Arrests and Assured of Evidence for Prosecution.

Philadelphia, Sept. 21.—A report from Washington says that one of the leaders of the country wide blackmail syndicate had made a complete confession involving the activities of all the members of the gang, the parts they played in the operation of the syndicate, the number and identity of the persons blackmailed and an estimate of the amount which had been netted within the past two years that staggered the comprehension of his captors.

The money extorted is said to run into millions of dollars. Probably none of it ever will be restored to the victims.

The revelation came following a conference held in the office of Attorney General Gregory in Washington in which virtually every important government official connected with the investigation of the case participated.

As a result of the confession the officials of the department of justice, faced until then by a stone wall that made convictions of the blackmailers virtually impossible because of the refusal of prominent persons who had been blackmailed to testify, believe that the "game is up," for every one of the conspirators. Most of them have not been arrested as yet. But secret service men are shadowing every person connected with the syndicate in half a dozen cities of the country and the arrests can be made at the pleasure of the department of justice.

In the department's history there has seldom been such a dramatic condition as forced the confession of one of the "big chiefs" of the gang. Desperately in love with a woman, he was faced with the certainty that she had been involved by the government officials inextricably in the net they had thrown about a group of the conspirators.

When he was told of the evidence that had been gotten against the woman, and shown the proofs, he broke down and begged that the government should center its punishment upon him and let her go free.

Shaken with emotion he promised to do anything to aid the government officials if they would promise not to arrest her and send her to prison. And a qualified promise was given him to that effect providing he confessed everything. "If your confession is complete the woman you love will not be interfered with," he was told.

That ended the matter. Completely broken he began a recital of the syndicate's organization and activities, which lasted for several hours. When it was ended the government officials were in possession of virtually every bit of information concerning the gang they desired. A work that would have taken months and possibly a year of further investigation had been cleaned up in a few hours.

The woman is at liberty in a city which cannot be mentioned as yet, and it is probable that she will remain at liberty.

Furthermore, it was learned that Attorney General Gregory has had before him for the last month or more the offer of one of the most prominent women in Baltimore to testify that members of the syndicate bled her of $38,000 and a limousine automobile valued at $5000 after she had no more money to give them. Her attorney in Baltimore informed the attorney general that this woman would appear against the men who blackmailed her provided she was granted immunity from publicity and a resulting scandal.

She is a middle-aged widow and was gotten into a compromising position through a ruse of the blackmailers in an Atlantic City hotel last fall.

U. S. RANKS FIRST IN THRIFT, EXPERT SAYS

Tells How Poverty is Being Reduced.

St. Louis, Sept. 21.—The American people rank first in thriftiness, according to J. Lionberger Davis, vice president of the St. James Union Trust company, who addressed the convention of the National Association of Life Underwriters here.

"Banks and insurance companies are performing services that are educational in every sense of the word, and are doing more than a thousand times more than any other agency to reduce poverty."

John G. Jones, of the Alexander Hamilton Institute, said that the time is nearly passed when life insurance men are to be looked upon as nuisances. He added:

"The life insurance salesman who is imbued with the right ideals is just as important a man in his town as the president of a savings bank. And such a salesman takes an active and permanent interest in his clients and earns their good will by his attention to their interests."

TO UPHOLD 8-HOUR LAW

President Wilson Will Meet Attacks of Republicans.

Long Branch, N. J., Sept. 21.—President Wilson and Vance C. McCormick, chairman of the Democratic national committee, mapped out a program for meeting the campaign attacks of Charles E. Hughes on the railroad eight-hour law.

Asserting that the Democrats would show that the president placed before congress a complete program to meet the recently threatened strike by the railway employees, Mr. McCormick asserted that Mr. Wilson is prepared strongly to urge during the next session of congress the enactment of this program.

When the entire plan of the president is fully understood the people of the country will join in praising Mr. Wilson, the chairman said. The Republicans, he declared, seem to ignore everything in the program except the one item passed by congress. Mr. McCormick added that it will be shown clearly how the president plans to minimize the possibility of a repetition of the railroad situation that recently arose.

Tree Revives after having been Apparently Killed by Lightning.

A large locust tree at the home of Harry Starry, of Upper Latimore, is quite a curiosity. About two months ago the tree was struck by lightning and apparently died, all the leaves dropping off. During the past week new foliage has appeared on the tree and the strangest feature is that it is also in full bloom as though it were springtime.

YORK COUNTY

TOOK $46 FROM SLEEPING MAN

Before Alderman Joseph Harman Tuesday, in York, Harry Mentel, an Italian, was given a hearing on a charge of illegal train riding but was discharged when he told how he had been robbed and placed in the box car by seven members of the "Buzzard" gang. Mentel was arrested by Pennsylvania Railroad Detective Paul Lancaster, who found him in a box car near the York Safe and Lock company's plant. Mentel, who is half blind, told the officer that the "Buzzards" had put him to bed in the box car but when he awoke the next morning he found $46 was missing.

It is believed that Mentel, who was walking toward Baltimore, exhibited too much money when he met the gang Monday night and after "rolling" him for his change they put him in the box car and proceeded to lay in a supply of whiskey. Later three of the gang were arrested in York charged with having robbed him.

CRUSHED TO DEATH

George Bortner, a resident of Rockville, a village about three miles north of Glen Rock, was fatally hurt about 10:30 o'clock Tuesday morning, when the rear wheels of a heavy farm wagon passed over his chest, breaking several of his ribs and injuring him internally. He died at 5 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

Bortner was riding to Glen Rock on the four-horse farm wagon of John Lucabaugh, a neighbor. The wagon struck a large stone in the road near the residence of J. T. Krebs at Centerville, and Bortner was jolted from the seat and thrown under the rear wheels. The injured man was picked up and removed to the Krebs residence. Later he was taken to his home in the automobile of Dr. W. C. Seitz, Glen Rock, who was summoned and rendered medical aid. Mr. Bortner was 67 years old. He leaves his wife and two sons.

SAVES DAUGHTER'S LIFE

Presence of mind on the part of Mrs. John Heindel, residing along the state highway between Red Lion and Dallastown, probably saved her seven-year-old daughter, Jennie, from a horrible death about noon Tuesday. The child was standing near a gasoline engine which is used to pump water from the well at the Heindel residence. A sudden gust of wind blew her apron toward the machine. The garment, becoming entangled in the revolving shaft which connects the engine to the pump, drew the child toward it and threw her around the shaft several times.

Attracted by screams the mother rushed to her assistance. Realizing that the child would in all probability be killed before she could shut off the engine, the woman attempted to free her from the shaft by tearing her clothing. The rapidly revolving shaft threw the child around in such a manner that her feet struck Mrs. Heindel in the face, causing a severe laceration of the lips and breaking out several teeth. A second attempt was successful. In tearing the child loose, a large quantity of hair was torn from her head. The child was rendered unconscious, her head having struck the ground several times.

SAVES HUSBAND'S LIFE

Norman C. Beard, 40 years old, after a quarrel with his wife at their home, in York, Tuesday night went to the cellar, hanged himself with a window cord to the joists. His wife cut him down. The police found life still remained and revived Beard. Then he fought like a tiger and was rushed to the hospital and put in a strait-jacket. He will recover.

FRANKLIN COUNTY

POLE ENDS JOY RIDE

That alcohol and gasoline will mix was demonstrated again Tuesday afternoon, when Charles B. Moore and Tom Jones had a series of adventures in the automobile belonging to Magistrate Frank Orr, of Chambersburg. Mr. Orr was on a business trip to Philadelphia Tuesday and during his absence and without his permission, Moore, who is employed as a bill poster by the 'Squire, took out Mr. Orr's Ford that has the body equipped for bill posting use. Moore got Tom Jones in as a passenger and they went to St. Thomas. There they had a few drinks and then started for home. On the way down the Lincoln Highway one of the front tires was punctured. Rather than fix it they removed the tire and placed it on the car, running on the rim of the wheel. Before long the machine had run off the road, into a field. Fords have the reputation of being able to go anywhere and after a little maneuvering Chauffeur Moore was able to drive the machine into the road. Then it ran into a telegraph pole and this ended the joy ride.

SYNOPSIS

Talbot Ward's challenge to Frank Munroe to a personal encounter to determine whether Munroe is fit to make a trip to California in search of gold is accepted. Munroe gets a hammerlock on Ward and wins the bout.

They choose the Panama route. Ward, it develops, is an old campaigner. On board ship they meet Johnny Fairfax and Yank Rogers. The four become partners. Arriving at Chagres, Talbot Ward's knowledge of Spanish and his firm treatment of the native boatmen help wonderfully. The party enters a tropical forest.

They reach Gatun, and, after passing through several villages where Ward always diplomatically handles the natives, they arrive in Panama.

Ward forces steamship agent to refund passage money because ship isn't available.

Yank has provided accommodations for all on board a sailing ship. They arrive in San Francisco.

Ward puts it up to each man to get $20 in one day. Munroe makes $25 as a laborer. Johnny gambles and gets $20.

Ward astounds the party by telling how, by shrewd business deals in one day in the Golden City, he accumulated several thousand dollars.

CHAPTER XII.

The Gold Trail.

WE came upon the diggings quite suddenly. The trail ran around the corner of a hill, and there they were below us! In the wide, dry stream bottom perhaps fifty men were working busily, like a lot of ants. Some were picking away at the surface of the ground; others had dug themselves down waist deep and stooped and rose like legless bodies. Others had disappeared below ground and showed occasionally only as shovel blades. From so far above the scene was very lively and animated, for each was working like a beaver, and the red shirts made gay little spots of color. On the hillside clung a few white tents and log cabins, but the main town itself we later discovered, as well as the larger diggings, lay around the bend and upstream.

We looked all about us for some path leading down to the river, but could find none. So perforce we had to continue on along the trail. Thus we entered the camp of Hangman's Gulch, for if it had been otherwise I am sure we would have located promptly where we had seen those red shirts men.

We wandered about here and there, looking with all our eyes. The miners were very busy and silent, but quite friendly, and allowed us to examine as much as we pleased the results of their operations. In the pots and cradles the yellow flake gold glittered plainly, contrasting with the black sand. In the pans, however, the residue spread out fan shaped along the angle between the bottom and the side, and at the apex the gold lay heavy and beautiful all by itself. The men were generally bearded, tanned with working in this blinding sun and plastered liberally with the red earth. We saw some queer sights, however, as when we came across a jolly pair dressed in what were the remains of ultra fashionable garments up to and including plug hats! At one side, working some distance from the stream, were small groups of native Californians or Mexicans. They did not trouble to carry the earth all the way to the river, but, after screening it roughly, tossed it into the air above a canvas, thus winnowing out the heavier pay dirt. I thought this must be very disagreeable.

As we wandered about here and there among all these men so busily engaged and with our own eyes saw pan after pan show gold, actual metallic guaranteed gold, such as rings and watches and money are made of, a growing excitement possessed us—the excitement of a small boy with a new and untried gun. We wanted to get at it ourselves. Only we did not know how.

Finally Yank approached one of the busy miners. "Stranger," said he, "we're new to this. Maybe you can tell us where we can dig a little of this gold ourselves." The man straightened his back to exhibit a roving humorous blue eye, with which he examined Yank from top to toe.

"If," said he, "it wasn't for that eighteen foot cannon you carry over your left arm and a cold gray bar of eyes you carry in your head I'd direct you up the sidehill yonder and watch you sweat. As it is, you can work anywhere anybody else isn't working. Start in!"

"Can we dig right next to you, then?" asked Yank, nodding at an unbroken piece of ground just upstream. The miner clambered carefully out of his waist deep trench, searched his pockets, produced a pipe and tobacco. After lighting this he made Yank a low bow.

"Thanks for the compliment; but, I warn you, this claim of mine is not very rich. I'm thinking of trying somewhere else."

"Don't you get any gold?"

"Oh, a few ounces a day."

"That suits me for a beginning," said Yank decidedly. "Come on, boys!"

The miner hopped back into his hole, only to stick his head out again for the purpose of telling us:

"Mind you keep fifteen feet away!"

With eager hands we slipped a pick and shovels from beneath the pack ropes, undid our iron bucket and without further delay commenced feverishly to dig.

Johnny held the pail, while Yank and I vied with each other in being the first to get our shovelfuls into that receptacle. As a consequence we nearly swamped the pail first off and had to pour some of the earth out again. Then we all three ran down to the river and took turns stirring that mud pie beneath the gently flowing waters in the manner of the "pot panners" we had first watched. After a good deal of trouble we found ourselves possessed of a thick layer of rocks and coarse pebbles.

"We forgot to screen it," I pointed out.

"We haven't any screen," said Johnny.

"Let's pick 'em out by hand," suggested Yank.

We did so. The process emptied the pail. Each of us insisted on examining closely, but none of us succeeded in creating out of our desires any of that alluring black sand.

"I suppose we can't expect to get color every time," observed Johnny disappointedly. "Let's try her again."

We tried her again, and yet again and then some more, but always with the same result. Our hands became puffed and wrinkled with constant immersion in the water and began to feel sore from the continual stirring of the rubble.

"Something wrong," grunted Johnny into the abyssal silence in which we had been carrying on our work.

"We can't expect it every time," I reminded him.

"All the others seem to."

"Well, maybe we've struck a blank place. Let's try somewhere else," suggested Yank.

Johnny went over to speak to our neighbor, who was engaged in tossing out shovelfuls of earth from an excavation into which he had nearly disappeared. At Johnny's hail he straightened his back, so that his head bobbed out of the hole like a prairie dog.

"No, it doesn't matter where you dig," he answered Johnny's question. "The pay dirt is everywhere."

So we moved on a few hundred feet, picked another unoccupied patch and resumed our efforts. No greater success rewarded us here.

"I believe maybe we ought to go deeper," surmised Yank.

"Some of these fellows are taking their dirt right off top of the ground," objected Johnny.

However, we unlimbered the pickaxe and went deeper, to the extent of two feet or more. It was good hard work, especially as we were all soft for it. The sun poured down on our backs with burning intensity, our hands blistered, and the round rocks and half cemented rubble that made the bar were not the easiest things in the world to remove. However, we kept at it. Yank and I, having in times past been more or less accustomed to this sort of thing, got off much easier than did poor Johnny. About two feet down we came to a mixed coarse sand and stones, a little finer than the top dirt. This seemed to us promising, so we resumed our washing operations. They bore the same results as had the first, which was just the whole of nothing.

"We've got to hit it somewhere," said Johnny between his teeth. "Let's try another place."

We scrambled rather wearily, but with a dogged determination, out of our shallow hole. Our blue eyed, long bearded friend was sitting on a convenient boulder near at hand, his pipe between his teeth, watching our operations.

"Got any tobacco, boys?" he inquired genially. "Smoked my last until tonight unless you'll lend."

Yank produced a plug, from which the stranger shaved some parings.

"Struck the dirt?" he inquired. "No; I see you haven't." He stretched himself and arose. "You aren't washing this stuff!" he cried in amazement as his eye took in fully what we were about.

Then we learned what we might have known before—but how should we?—that the gold was not to be found in any and every sort of loose earth that might happen to be lying about, but only in either a sort of blue clay or a pulverized granite. Sometimes this "pay dirt" would be found atop the ground. Again, the miner had to dig for it.

"All the surface diggings are taken up," our friend told us, "so now you have to dig deep. It's about four feet down where I'm working. It'll probably be deeper up here. You'd better move back where you were."

Yank stretched himself upright. "Look here," he said decidedly, "let's get a little sense into ourselves. Here's our pore old hosses standing with their packs on and we no place to stay and no dinner, and we're scratchin' away at this bar like a lot of fool hens. There's other days comin'!"

Johnny and I agreed with the common sense of the thing, but reluctant ly. Now that we knew how, our enthusiasm surged up again. We wanted to get at it. The stranger's eyes twinkled sympathetically.

We Actually Panned Our First Gold!

"Here, boys," said he, "I know just how you feel. Come with me."

He snatched up our bucket and strode back to his own claim, where he filled the receptacle with some of the earth he had thrown out.

"Go pan that," he advised us kindly.

We raced to the water and once more stirred about the heavy contents of the pail until they had floated off with the water. In the bottom lay a fine black residue, and in that residue glittered the tiny yellow particles. We had actually panned our first gold!

Our friend examined it critically. "That's about a twelve cent pan," he adjudged it.

Somehow in a vague way we had unreasonably expected millions at a twist of the wrist, and the words, "12 cents," had a rankly penurious sound to us. However, the miner patiently explained that a twelve cent pan was a very good one, and indubitably it was real gold.

Yank, being older and less excitable, had not accompanied us to the water-side.

"Well, boys," he drawled, "that 12 cents is highly satisfactory, of course, but in the meantime we've lost about $500 worth of boss and grub."

Surely enough, our animals had tired of waiting for us and had moved out packs and all. We hastily shouldered our implements.

"Don't you want to keep this claim next me?" inquired our acquaintance. We stopped.

"Surely!" I replied. "But how do we do it?"

"Just leave your pick and shovel in the hole."

"Won't some one steal them?"

"No."

"What's to prevent?" I asked a little skeptically.

"Miner's law," he replied.

We almost immediately got trace of our stray animals, as a number of men had seen them going upstream. In fact, we had no difficulty whatever in finding them, for they lay simply followed up the rough stream bed between the canyon walls until it had opened up to a gentler slope and a hanging garden of grass and flowers. Here they had turned aside and were feeding. We caught them and were just heading them back when Yank stopped short.

"What's the matter with this here?" he inquired. "Here's feed and water near, and it ain't so very far back to the diggings."

We looked about us for the first time with seeing eyes. The little up sloping meadow was blue and dull red with flowers, below us the stream brawled foam decked among black rocks, the high hills rose up to meet the sky, and at our backs across the way the pines stood thick as sentinels. Far up in the blue heavens some birds were circling slowly. Somehow the leisurely swing of these unbending birds struck from us the feverish hurry that had lately filled our souls. We drew deep breaths, and for the first time the great peace and majesty of these California mountains cooled our spirits.

"I think it's a bully place, Yank," said Johnny soberly, "and that little bench up above us looks flat."

We clambered across the slant of the flower spangled meadow to the bench, just within the fringe of the pines. It proved to be flat, and from the edge of it down the hill seeped a little spring marked by the feathery bracken. We entered a cool green place, peopled with shadows and the rare, considered notes of soft voiced birds. Just over our threshold, as it were, was the sunlit, chirpy, buzzing, bright colored busy world. Overhead a wind of many voices hummed through the pine tops. The golden sunlight flooded the mountains opposite, flashed from the stream, lay languorous on the meadow. Long bars of it slanted through an unguessed gap in the hills behind us to touch with magic the very tops of the trees over our heads. The sheen of the precious metal was over the land.

SAYS ALLIES LOST 500,000

Germany's Estimate in the Somme Battle.

SAYS GAINS ARE SMALL

Declares Appalling Price Was Paid for Reconquest of Three Per Cent of Invaded Territory.

Berlin, Sept. 21.—British and French losses in the battle of the Somme have reached about 500,000, the Overseas News agency estimates.

"Recent local successes obtained by the British on the Somme are heralded by the English press as great victories and even occasioned a special message from King George to the British commander, General Sir Douglas Haig," says the agency. "It is said the British occupied the villages of Fiers, Martapuch and Courcellette in the first day's fighting, although it had been planned to take them in the course of four days of battle.

"Nevertheless, the British were enabled to make this advance only after eleven weeks of the most desperate efforts. The results of the battle of the Somme should be gauged by considering the amount of French and Belgian territory occupied by the Germans, which amounts, in all, to about 50,000 square kilometers (19,531 square miles). Of this 29,000 is Belgian and 21,000 French. The efforts of the French and British have resulted in the reconquest of only 1500 square kilometers (586 square miles), or three per cent.

"The price paid for this territory is appalling. According to a conservative estimate, the British lost 350,000 men up to September 15. This, together with the French losses, brings up the total to about half a million men."

French Repulse Fierce Attacks.
London, Sept. 21.—Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria, German commander on the Somme, launched a fierce offensive against the French troops in the region between Clercy and the river who are menacing Peronne from the northwest.

The assaults in the northern part of this region were sharply checked, the Paris war office announces.

In the southern section the Germans succeeded in penetrating some advance trench elements, but were ejected by French counter attacks. In the region of Bouchavergne, the official report states, a great artillery struggle is in progress.

The allied guns no longer are confronted with a task as heavy as that of the first ten weeks of the offensive. The strongest of the German works have been battered down and captured. When the next thrusts are launched, Combes and Chaulnes will be subjected to the heaviest attacks. The ground has been prepared for the capture of these important strongholds. Peronne, too, is within gunshot, while Bapaume can be reached by Haig's heavy artillery.

Reports from the front indicate the comparative ease with which the British carried the first line of the new German defenses built only recently. If the systems behind there are no stronger the withdrawal of the Germans from Picardy is regarded by the allies as certain.

6 DIE IN POWDER BLAST

Meet Death When Explosion Blows Up Building of Aetna Company Plant.
Huntingdon, Pa., Sept. 21.—Five men were instantly killed and another injured so badly that he died on the way to the hospital here, when the air dryhouse of the Mt. Union plant of the Aetna Explosives company was wrecked.

The dead are Clayton Clark, Shirlleysburg; James Piles, Charles Bard and George Stair, of Orbisonia; Coleman Alsich, Lancaster, and William Leeman, Portage, Pa.

All the dead were employed in the building which was blown to pieces. The force of the blast was heard for miles, but except for broken windows the only damage to the plant was in the building where the explosion occurred.

$8000 on Hughes, 2 to 1.

New York, Sept. 21.—J. J. Judge bet $8000 on Hughes against $4000 laid by Jacob Specht on Wilson on the Wall street curb. Earlier in the day it was reported that $40,000 of Wilson money was ready at eight to five and two to one. Edward McQuade, curb betting commissioner, booked one transaction of $800 on Hughes to $500 on Wilson, a prominent theatrical manager taking the Democratic end.

THINK VILLA CUTS CARRANZA LINES

Funston Says Bandit's Position
Makes This Logical Step.

San Antonio, Tex., Sept. 21.—Belief that Francisco Villa soon will cut the Carranza line of communications between Chihuahua City and Juarez, if he has not already done so, was suggested by Major General Funston after he had read a report on Villa's Chihuahua engagement received from Brigadier General Bell at El Paso.

Stories gathered by General Bell from persons reaching El Paso from the interior indicate that General Trevino's forces were driven out of Chihuahua City in Villa's Saturday attack and that they took station on a large hill outside the city from necessity and not from choice, as previous reports said. From this hill they succeeded, by the use of artillery, in dislodging the Villistas.

General Funston refused to give out all details of the Bell report for publication, but he said that it confirmed previous accounts of the battle and indicated even more serious conditions than were admitted by the Carranzistas.

General Bell's report said that Villa's force last Saturday was estimated at from 500 to 1700 men. General Funston believes this force has grown since the Chihuahua battle. He said that in this case the logical step for Villa to take would be the severing of the line of communications between Chihuahua and Juarez. This would give him control of the Mexico Northwestern railroad and, the general added, "the garrisons to the north would have to look out."

Many of the girls and children will need warm school coats before the Winter closes—here you can save enough on ONE COAT to COAT the entire school family.

"THERE IS A REASON" for this sale at this time. The end of last season found us with an accumulation of 153 coats in various sizes and qualities which we packed up to send to City Auction. Since then we found, in trying to place orders for Fall, a great scarcity and consequent high prices on, especially the grade goods usually bought for school uses and—were it not for the fact that we need the room badly, and our aversion to having the stock cluttered with former seasons goods—we could get much more for them no doubt in a regular way.

But—AND DON'T FORGET THIS PART OF IT—All coats not sold during these three days will be shipped on Monday, Sept. 25th.—so you see it is important that you attend this SALE on the DATES NAMED.

Most of these Coats are of All Wool materials that cannot be had at all this season. And they are ALL RIGHT—except that they are just a trifle away from this seasons styles; to understand just what a little difference there is you must come and see for yourself—explanations will not tell the story.

IT'S FOOLISH TO SUFFER

When So Many Gettysburg People Are Pointing the Way Out.

You may be brave enough to stand backache or headache or dizziness. But if, in addition urination is disordered, look out! If you don't try to fix your sick kidneys, you may fall into the clutches of dangerous disease before you know it. But, if you live more carefully and help your kidneys with Doan's Kidney Pills, you can stop the pains you have and avoid future danger as well. Don't experiment—use the remedy Gettysburg people are publicly endorsing. Read this case:

Mrs. John L. Menchy, 46 Breckenridge St., Gettysburg, says: "Several times in the past I suffered from backache and dizzy headaches. My kidneys acted irregularly. Doan's Kidney Pills, produced at the People's Drug Store, gave me such good benefit that I haven't found it necessary to use them in a long time." Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Arendt had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

DRINK HOT WATER
IF YOU DESIRE A
ROSY COMPLEXION

Says we can't help but look better and feel better after an inside bath.

To look one's best and feel one's best is to enjoy an inside bath each morning to flush from the system the previous day's waste, sour fermentations and poisonous toxins before it is absorbed into the blood. Just as coal, when it burns, leaves behind a certain amount of incombustible material in the form of ashes, so the food and drink taken each day leave in the alimentary organs a certain amount of indigestible material, which if not eliminated, form toxins and poisons which are then sucked into the blood through the very ducts which are intended to suck in only nourishment to sustain the body.

If you want to see the glow of healthy bloom in your cheeks, to see your skin get clearer and clearer, you are told to drink every morning upon arising, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, which is a harmless means of washing the waste material and toxins from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary tract, before putting more food into the stomach.

Men and women with sallow skins, liver spots, pimples or pallid complexion, also those who wake up with a coated tongue, bad taste, nasty breath, others who are bothered with headaches, bilious spells, acid stomach or constipation should begin this phosphate hot water drinking and are assured of very pronounced results in one or two weeks.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs very little at the drug store but is sufficient to demonstrate that just as soap and hot water cleanses, purifies and freshens the skin on the outside, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the inside organs. We must always consider that internal sanitation is vastly more important than outside cleanliness, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, while the bowel pores do.
